TAKE ONE

FILM & TELEVISION IN CANADA

"Take One is a wonderful resource, and we're fortunate to have it in our collective midst."
Jan Miller, Vice President, imX Communications

"Take One is without a doubt the best magazine on Canadian film anywhere in the world, or for that matter, the universe."

Natalie Edwards, writer/editor, formerly with Cinema Canada and Playback

"Every issue of Take One is like a personal letter from the Canadian film scene—passionate, thoughtful and eyebrow raising."

John Greyson, director/writer, Zero Patience, Lilies, The Law of Enclosures

"Take One is deeply felt, intelligent and provocative...and a darn good read."

Alexandra Rockingham Gill, director, Leda and the Swan; co-producer, Gambling, Gods and LSD

"Take One, for a continuing, compelling and comprehensive perspective on Canadian film arts."

Peter Mettler, director/cinematographer, Tectonic Plates, Picture of Light, Gambling, Gods and LSD

"For me, Take One is indispensable for finding out the latest information about contemporary Canadian cinema, and for carrying on an accessible but informed discourse about Canadian cinema, past and present."

Barry Grant, Professor of Film and Popular Culture, Brock University

CANADA'S
MAGAZINE

"The New Brunswick Film Co-op has subscribed to Take One since day one. It is a significant and inspiring resource for our members, and provides a vital voice for Canadian filmmakers."

Tony Merzetti, Co-ordinator, New Brunswick Filmmakers' Co-op

"Take One is essential reading for Canadian film critics, students and fans."

Christine Ramsay, Department of Film and Video, University of Regina

"Take One is the only English-Canadian magazine of its kind."

Colleen Murphy, director/writer, Shoemaker, Desire
