FILM IN CANADA

Features

- 6 Crash Test David Cronenberg's latest and most controversial film was the winner of a Special Jury Prize, Prix d'Audace, at this year's Cannes Film Festival. By Brian D. Johnson
- 13 The Making of the willing voyeur... What kind of a film would an experimental director produce given the machinery and money of the mainstream? By Richard Kerr
- 18 Three Men and a Bear Michael Hirsh, Clive Smith and Patrick Loubert created Nelvana in 1971. Today it is Canada's most successful animation company. By Ellen Besen and Marc Glassman
- 24 Long Day's Journey Into Night Stratford's brilliant production of Eugene O'Neill's classic American family tragedy is brought to the big screen by Rhombus Media. By Jennie Punter

Profiles

- 34 Primal Scene: Pierre Gang's Sous-sol Quebec's Official Selection at Cannes, Pierre Gang's first feature is a psychodrama dealing with sexually explosive family relationships. By Maurie Alioff
- 38 Small Victories: William D. MacGillivray Goes TV with Gullage's From The Rock comes a very peculiar television series, sort of a cross between Coronation Street and Twin Peaks, about an utterly unforgettable taxi company in St. John's. By Tom McSorley
- 42 Bruce McDonald's Hard Core Logo Spinal Tap's "mean little brother" is bad boy director McDonald's finest film to date. By Ken Anderlini

Interview

- 49 Garry Toth: The Rise and Demise of the AMPDC English Canada's oldest provincial agency to assist in the production of film and television closes its doors. It's a sign of the times. By Fran Humphreys
