THE LIFE OF JOHN CANDY

FILM IN CANADA

CONTENTS

Features

- 4 Lament for a Nation: The Rise and Fall of the Avro Arrow Thirty-eight years ago, the Avro Arrow project was cancelled and all prototypes destroyed. What happened was nothing less than the defining moment in Canada's colonial history. By Tom McSorley
- 11 Swann and The English Patient Carol Shields has won the Pulitzer Prize and Michael Ondaatje the Booker—and they both are Governor-General's award winners. Adapting their books to the screen was no easy task. By Douglas Fetherling
- 16 It Came From Edmonton Adapted from Laughing on the Outside: The Life of John Candy, the unauthorized biography of the Canadian funny man and one of the best-loved actors ever to come from this country. By Martin Knelman
- 22 Winter Tales In a tough climate for the arts, Canadian directors are still producing an intriguing mixed-bag of new films. By Marc Glassman

The 1996 Toronto Film Critics' Poll

- 26 Take One presents the Second Annual Poll of Toronto Film Critics who pick the very best in Canadian cinema for 1996.

Profiles

- 28 Deepa Mehta's Trial by Fire Canada's Deepa Mehta explores the world of Indian arranged marriages and a relationship that transcends the bounds of traditional duty. By Pamela Cuthbert
- 32 Peter Lynch's Project Grizzly: A Distinctly Canadian Quest North Bay scrap-metal dealer Troy Hurtubise's obsession with a primal encounter with a grizzly bear has led him on a life-long quest to confront the "Old Man" of his dreams. By Laurence Green
- 36 Cynthia Roberts's Bubbles Galore A comedy of outrageous sexual delights with Annie Sprinkle as "God." By Maurie Alioff

Point of View

- 40 The Festival That Ate My Brain One filmmaker's odyssey through the maze of festival screenings and the personal hell of AIDS. By Mike Hoolboom
